THE AFGHAN DIFFICULTY. LOOKS LIKE WAR.

LONDON, April 22.—In the house of lords, Earl Granville said that the government had come to the conclusion that the position of affairs justified the putting of the army, navy and the whole auxiliary forces of the nation in immediate readiness for service if required.

Lord Granville continuing said that the operation in Egypt had been such that they could not be abandoned. The government had adhered to their pledges regarding the defense of Egypt by a vote they had asked for. They had also met all the demands of the Indian government, the expenses of which were entirely covered by provision at home. were entirely covered by provision at home. England desired. England desired. Lord Granville said, to remain on the most friendly terms with all foreign countries. The contemplated increase in the strength of the army and navy could not in the slightest degree diminish the strong desire entertained by the government for a peace for the present with Russia.

Earl of Morely, under secretary of war, announced this evening that the whole first class of the army reserves had been notified that they are liable to be summoned for service at very short notice. The government had no intention at present, he said, of summoning the militia reserves.

The vote of credit passed without division.

Gladstone also stated that the government had received no communication from either Turkey, Austria, France or Germany con-cerning the closing of the Dardanelles. Gladstone in presenting the government's request for a vote of credit said the government feels that it is necessary to hold all the resources of the empire including the forces vallable for instant use in reply to the government's inquiry as to the correctness of Ges. Komaroff's report of the encounter between the Russians and the Afghans on the Kushk river, is dated Tirpul, April 17, and is addressed to Earl Granville. The dispatch reads as follows: Gen. Kom-aroff's account of the attack on Penjdeh is considered incorrect. Gen. Komaroff says on the 25th of March one detachment approached Tash Kepri, on our bank of the Kushk river. Tash Kepri is Kurti for Pul I Khisti. Gen. Komaroff's claim to either bank of the Kushk is untenable. The left bank has always been held by the Afghans and was never subject to Russian occupation. On the 20th day of February the Russians located an outpost of twenty-five Turkomans at Kizil Tepe mound one mile north of Pul I Khisti and about a mile from the nearest point on the Kuskh river and the Kuskh's junction with Murghab This had a ways remained the extreme limit of the Russian advance within their line of videttes. The Russian cavairy detachment alluded to did advance against Pul I Khisti March 25, but they retired before reaching there, when warned by the Afghan commander as they had been on February 20. Secondly, Gen. Komaroff states that near the bridge he found an entrenchment occupied by Afghans previous to Gen. Komaroff's advance, and to theagreement of March 17. Thirdly—Gen. Komaroff says: 'In order to avoid a conflict, I placed my troops, five versts from the Afghans posilimit of the Russian advance within their line ops, five versts from the Afghans posi-In reply to this I can only refer to the main body, as the Russian troops were in Kizil Zepe, a mile from the Alghan position, and the Russian Vidette's considerably in advance of that point. Fourthly—Gen. Komaroff says: "When the Komaroff seys: "When the Afghans were convinced that we had no intention of attacking them they began to come daily nearer to our camp. In reply that far from the Afghans being convinced of Gen. Komaroff's innocent intentions the continued irritating daily attempts to provoke hostility convinced the Afghans that the Russians were determined to provoke a conflict. This induced the Afghans to what appeared a military necessity in extending their defensive reconneisance, the companies, with cannons at Pulikhisti and Axcaxa, which command and some cavalty. In reply to this I say:

SIR PRIER LUMSDEN'S DISPATCH

The reconnoisence in force itself meant a hostille intention, and the Russian company meant 250 men, more than equivalent to three Afghan companies, which aggregated 220 men. On the 27th two bodies of Russians simultaneously advanced. Col. Ali Khanoff, with cavalry pushed past Pul I Knisti. The Russian infantry penetrated the right flank of the Afghan position on the right. flank of the Afghan position on the right bank of the Murghab. Col. Ali Khanoff only bank of the Murghab. Col. Ali Khanoff only retired when intercepted by the Afghans. The cavalry was four miles in the rear of the Afghan position. The Russian infantry only retired when the Afghan commander drew up three companies warning the Russian officer if he advanaed further he would be fired upon. General Komaroff's chief of staff in an inetrview had on the 29th, called Col. Ali Khanoff's advance merely a pleasure trip, but he was informed the Afghan commander viewed it in a most across light.

Sixthly, Gen. Komaroff states that the arrogance and andacity of the Afghans increased by degrees. I reply that it may have been so, but, if so, it was entirely caused by the Russian action. The Afghans did their utmost to avoid a collision. It is solely owing to their patience and forbearance during the two months of incessant irritation that peace was preserved so long. The Afghan commander's courteous reply of March 29 to Gen. Komaroff's ultimatum proves his wish to the last to avoid a conflict. Gen. Komaroff says that on the 28th the Afghans occupied a height commanding the left flank of the Russian camp, and began to throw up entrenchments there to establish a post of cavalry behind the Russian line, and placed pickets within gun-shot distance. In reply te that, the Afghan commander did on the 28th atter a hostile reconnoisance on the 27th place a post of observation on the hills on the right bank of the Murghab river for the purpose of giving of any fresh Russian advance, but the poor was attacked on the first day. Aerious Heht.

giving of any fresh Russian advance, but the post was attacked on the first day. post was attacked on the first day.

Eighthly. Gen. Komaroff says on the 29th he sent to the Afghan commander an energetic summons, etc., and received an answer that, by the advice of the English he and the Afghan commander refused to retire across the Kuskt river. In reply to this I may state that fact itself is reported to me to be totally incorrect. No where in the Afghan commander arenly is there any such state. commander's reply is there any such statement. On the contrary, the wording is distinct, thus: I have duly received your letter tinct, thue: I have duly received your letter regarding the withdrawal of certain pickets. Yate afterwards had an interview with Col. Zakrcheweki and informed me of the conversation which ensued. Be it known to ye, I must loyally obey the orders I have received from his highness the ameer. I can in no wise act contrary to the orders of my sovereign. Of course in matters of detail, sush as alterations in position, advanced pickets and videts, I am prepared to arrange with ye with a view to the advance of any risk of a conflict."

Peter Lumsden is at issue with General
Kemaroff. We cannot, continued the premier, enter into details or state the effect of

The Omaha and Council Bluffs freight war continues, and rates have gone still lower tnan they were Saturday. The rate on firstclass was quoted at 35 cents yesterday and on the low classes 10 cents, but is understood that in certain instances still lower rates are being made. In fact shippers are able to name the rates. There was danger yesterday morning that a general collapse of rates on business to Colorado and Utah points, which is pooled, would also take place, but this was prevented by the energetic intervention of Commissions Midgley. It was learned in the morning that the Northwestern was quoting rates to Colorado and Utah points at the cut rates to Colorado and Utah points at the cut rates to Omaha and the regular rates from Omaha west combined. But on being informed by Commissioner Midgley that its business would be diverted if it did not charge full tariff rates to Calorado and Utah the Northwestern agreed to restore full rates, and the other roads also agreed to maintain regular and hadrenss. It is not ular rates on such business. It is not other roads also agreed to maintain regular rates on such business. It is not probable, however, that the Colorado and Utah rates can be maintained much longer if the disas-trous war on Omaha and Council Bluffs busi-ness is not trought to a speedy end.
